WELL DESERVED.

The Praise that Comes From Thankful Cloverport People.

One Kidney remedy never fails. Cloverport people rely upon it. That remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Cloverport testimony proves it always reliable.

J. C. Weatherholt, High St., Cloverport, Ky., says: "Two years ago I did not think it possible that I could ever be well again, in fact, I had settled up my affairs. I cannot describe the misery endured from pains through my back and whenever I stooped, they became so sharp that it really felt as if someone were thrusting a knife into my kidneys. I was often very dizzy, dark spots floated before my eyes and I had to grasp something to keep from falling. My joints became swollen to twice their natural size and I lost weight rapidly until I was a skeleton. The doctors' medicines or the many guaranteed cures that I tried, did not help me and finally it was my good fortune to hear about Doan's Kidney Pills. I immediately procured a box at Fisher's drug store and I was greatly surprised at the results received. Before I had taken the contents of the second box, there was a marked improvement and I continued using them until completely cured. I am now as well as any man in this county and I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

KILLED BY DOGS

Twenty-two Fine Angora Goats Meet Death on Oglesby's Farm Near Town Friday

WAS A BIG LOSS TO OWNER

Friday a herd of goats were run down by several vicious dogs on the farm of Mr. Ed. Oglesby. Twenty-two goats were killed and others injured. The loss was exceedingly great for the goats were quite valuable to have on the farm for the purpose of cleaning underbrush. In several states farmers keep a herd of goats to clean their fields and it is found they do a good job at moderate cost. However, the animals have been a big loss to Mr. Oglesby. He thought the goats would fight and protect themselves, but he learned differently Friday.

It Saved His Leg.

Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured it sound and well." Reliable for Skin Diseases, Eczema, Salt Rheum, Boils, Fever Sores, Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Piles. 25c at Severs Drug Store.

HARDINSBURG

The Rev. English Delivered His Farewell Sermon To a Large Audience at the County Capital Sunday Night.

MUCH ILLNESS IN THE TOWN

Miss Beulah Rowland, an appointee to the Western State Normal, left for Bowling Green Monday.

Rev. E. B. English preached his farewell sermon to a crowded house Sunday night. No other services were held in town, thus giving to all church goers an opportunity to hear from one respected and loved by all the last sermon after a four years' pastorate in our city. Rev. and Mrs. English do not move to Owensboro until the last of March, though his work begins there the second Sunday.

Dr. McMullin has bought of Roy E. Moorman the brick corner now occupied as a store house by H. J. Roberts. Consideration, $800. Dr. McMullin will make some improvements and alterations, but does not yet give out to what use the building will be put. It is one of the most desirable locations in town.

Miss Verba McMullin left Monday for Henderson after closing her work Friday in the Public School. She is a successful teacher, a hard worker and is thoroughly acquainted with the work of a graded school. Her departure from Hardinsburg is attended by much regret.

After a trial of a week's duration in the testimony in the J. H. Glasscock suit vs. the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company was all given, Judge Chief became too ill to remain in court. As he was unable to give instructions to the jury, court was adjourned at noon Friday without anything being effected in the trial. It will be gone over again at the May term.

Charley Durham returned Sunday from a visit of several days to friends in Tell City.

Tom Moore spent Sunday in Louisville.

Mrs. J. E. Wright, of Louisville, is here visiting her father, Judge N. Mc Mercer.

Mrs. Maggie Baker, of Centertown, stopped over here Saturday on her way to Louisville and spent the day with Miss Lela McGary.

Mrs. Morris Board is in Louisville. Thos. Miller, grad at the war-house here, finished his work last week, and returned to his home after about sixty days of most satisfactory work.

The colored school closed last week with a creditable entertainment on Saturday night. Both the teachers leave this week for the State Colored School at Frankfort, where they will remain several months.

Judge Board and Hon. G. W. Beard, two of our oldest citizens, are unable to be out, being, it is thought, only temporarily indisposed.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

More Politics Than Farm Talk At Elizabethtown Meeting. A Political Wrangle.

FARMERS LEAVE DISGUSTED.

[From Evening Post.] Elizabethtown, Ky., Feb. 26.—At yesterday's session of the Kentucky Farmer's Institute H. M. Beard, of Breckenridge county, was chosen a member of the State Board of Agriculture from the Second Appellate district to succeed W. R. Moorman. The election of Mr. Beard, however, was not accomplished without a long wrangle, the Democrats contending that the delegates of Powell county, were elected, which met earlier in the day, were not legally elected and the Republicans claiming the contrary.

There was also some trouble in the Seventh Appellate District Convention, where Frank Blackburn, Republican, of Powell county, was elected to succeed J. C. Mayo.

These fights, which started in the district conventions, were carried to the floor of the big meeting, and when Lucien Becker presented the report of the Committee on Credentials, he was immediately challenged by Secretary Newman, of the State Fair Board, who claimed that none of the delegates to the institute of delegates had been properly elected. A long squabble followed and Roy Wilhoit, C. M. Barnett and Commissioner Rankin attacked the stand of former Senator Newman.

The charge was then made that letters had been sent out from the office of the Commissioner of Agriculture, urging the attendance of delegates to vote against Moorman, but the Commissioner replied that if such a thing had been done he knew nothing about it.

After long debate, however, the report of the Committee on Credentials was adopted, the Democrats refusing to vote.

Last night the members of the State Board of Agriculture met and re-elected J. W. Newman, Secretary of the State Fair by acclamation.

The following officers were elected by the Institute: C. M. Barnett, vice president, and P. M. Shy, secretary.

Later, at the night session, addresses on important topics were made by Cicero Barnett, Ben L. Bruner and Roy Wilhoit, secretary of the Railroad Commission.

Many of the farmers left during the political squabble yesterday, declaring they were disgusted with the action of some of the delegates, and saying that the affairs of the farmers had not received nearly so much attention as the matter of politics. The majority of them blame the Democrats for attempting to introduce the political matters in the meeting.

IN MEMORIAM.

In last week's issue of the News, reference was made to the funeral service of Mrs. Elizabeth Wilkerson, in this city, detailed facts not being then obtainable. Elizabeth Fisher Wilkerson, widow of the late Judge John S. Wilkerson, an youngest daughter of John and Agnes Fisher, was born July 4th, 1827 at the old Fisher homestead near this city, and fell asleep in Jesus, Friday, February 12th, 1909, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. David Standiford, in Brooklyn, N. Y. Born on an anniversary of our national independence day, and of our way to the 100th anniversary of the birth of the immortal Lincoln, her life thus was a worthy illustration of the patriotism of the nation.

About seventy-five years of her life was spent in Cleveland. In her young womanhood two years was spent in Louisville while the last five years of her splendid life were spent in Brooklyn, surrounded by all her children, save one. Sixty-five years ago Mrs. Wilkerson united with the Cloverport Baptist church, where her membership remained until her death.

REVIVAL SERVICES.

The Rev. Jenkins, State Evangelist Assisting Rev. Lewis in The Baptist Revival in Progress Here.

EVERYBODY INVITED TO ATTEND.

Sunday the Rev. James Lewis had the pleasure of introducing to his congregation the Rev. J. P. Jenkins, who will assist him in the Baptist revival. Rev. Jenkins is one of the State Evangelists, and has won the confidence of all those who have heard his discourses. His sermons are sincere and his address is engaging.

Services are held daily at 2:30 p. m. and every evening at 7:30. Sunday afternoon Rev. Jenkins will deliver an address (not a sermon) to men and boys only. His theme for this occasion is "Influence." He will appreciate a large attendance of the men of this city and surrounding community.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Toney have thrown open the doors of their hospitable home to Rev. Jenkins and he will be entertained there until the close of the revival.

A kind neighbor and a devotedly, loving mother, she lived to see all of her children useful and prosperous citizens and then peacefully lay down her armor and entered into sweet rest, fully resigned to the will of the great "Father," her last ambition to her children being to "love one another."

Funeral services were held at her daughter's home in Brooklyn Sunday, Feb. 14th, conducted by the Rev. Walter S. Rounds, of the Third Christian church, who spoke feelingly of the beautiful motherhood of the deceased, as well as of her confident hope in the Christian life. Two beautiful duets were sweetly rendered by Mrs. Weeks and Mr. Bowes of St. Marks Methodist Episcopal church, after which the remains, accompanied by two sons and two daughters, were taken over the Pennsylvania R. R. to Cloverport, via Louisville, where they were met by another son, daughter and grand-daughter.

In last week's issue of the News, full mention was made of the beautiful and touching services in the Cloverport Baptist church and at the grave, conducted by the Rev. Jas. Lewis and the church choir.

The body was laid to rest beside that of her late husband, in the Cloverport Cemetery.

Mrs. Wilkerson leaves three sons, Lewis Linn, Forrest Fisher, and John Cannon Wilkerson, of New York, and three daughters, Mrs. Chas. G. Warfield of Meridian, Miss, Mrs. Etta Evar, and Mrs. David Standiford, of New York, also five grand-children.

The family wish to express through the News their grateful and heartfelt thanks to the many friends and relatives in Cloverport and vicinity for their great sympathy and loving service so beautifully and touchingly rendered.

Don't Be Misled.

The retail druggists of this county, as a class, are noted for their high standard of intelligence and honorable dealing, but it is a well known fact that occasionally you will find one who will try to sell you, something else when you call for a remedy of established reputation. He forgets that your health is more important than his pocket-book.

For example, when you ask for Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, don't let any druggist, drug clerk or storekeeper persuade you into buying something else in its place. Every time he succeeds in selling you a worthless substitute he makes more profit, but you are humbugged at the expense of your health.

For many years we have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. From the very beginning, the proprietors had so much confidence in it that they invited every one to send for a free sample bottle so that people could judge of its great curative value in even the most distressing cases of kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

On another page of this paper you will find a few of the letters, prompted by feelings of heartfelt gratitude, that are constantly coming to Dr. Kilmer & Company. No one can doubt such sincere and honest testimony.

Swamp-Root is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Laboratories, Binghamton, N. Y.—Don't experiment.—If you need a medicine you should have the best.

CHAPTER VIII. HOW SENATOR LANGDON GETS A SECRETARY.

LANGDON leaned over and seized the arm of his interviewer. "See here, young man, why aren't you in politics?" he said. "Too busy, senator?" replied Haines. "Besides, I like the newspaper game." "Game?" queried Langdon. "Oh, I use the word in a general sense, senator," replied Haines. "Pretty much everything is a 'game'—politics, newspaper work, business of every sort. Men and women make 'moves' to meet the moves of other men and women. Why, even in religion, the way some people play a 'game'." The speaker was interrupted by the appearance of Hope Georgia, who was searching for her father.

"Stay here and listen to what a hard task your old father has got," said the Mississippian to his daughter, whom he presented to Haines with a picturesque flourish reminiscent of the pride and civility of the old south. "He has the idea that those New Yorkers who read his paper would actually like to know something about me."

Hope Georgia stole many glances at the reporter as he talked with her father. He made a deep impression on her young mind. She had spent almost all her life on the plantation, her education, owing to the death of her mother the planter had desired to keep Hope Georgia at home for companionship. This good looking, clean cut, well built young man who was talking so big and so active a part of the world's work brought to her the atmosphere that her spirit craved. He gave one an impression of ability, of earnestness, of sincerity, and she was glad that her father approved of him.

Hope Georgia, by the same token, did not escape the attention of the interviewer. Her appealing charm of face and figure was accentuated by her distinctness and a feeling suggestion of naivete in pose and expression when she was amused. His first glance revealed to Haines that her eyes were gray, the gray that people say indicates the possessor to have those priceless qualities—the qualities that make the sweetest women true, that make the maiden's eyes in truth the windows of her soul, the qualities that make women womanly.

She sat close to her father, her hand in his, listening intently to the unfolding of a story of what to her was a mysterious world—the man's world, the strong man's world—which many a woman would give her all to enter and play a part therein.

"What else have you against a political career, Mr. Haines?" went on the senator, taking up their conversation.

"Well, my age for one thing. I haven't any gray hairs." Langdon waved this objection aside. "I might arrange to pool ages with you. Sometimes I think we want young men in politics, like you."

The reporter shook his head. "Old in age and young in politics, like you, Senator Langdon," he replied. "Politics I sometimes think is corrupt and sometimes something worse. A man gets disgusted with the trickery and dishonesty and corruption."

"Then," drawled Langdon, "the thing to do is to jump in and stop it! I read in the newspapers a great deal about corruption. The gentlemen in national politics whom I have had the honor of knowing—Senator Moreau, an intimate friend of thirty years; my present colleagues, Senators Stevens and others—have been as honest as the day is long."

"But the days do get short in November, when congress meets, don't they?" laughed Haines, rising. "I'm afraid I've taken too much of your time, and I seem to have talked a lot."

"Does look like I'd been interviewing you. I reckon each one of us has got a pretty good notion of what the other man's like. I wanted it that way, and I like you, Mr. Haines. I've got a proposition to make to you. They tell me I'll need a secretary. Now, I think I need just such a young man as you. I don't know just exactly what the work would be or what the financial arrangements should be, but I think you and I would make a pretty good team. I wish you'd come. He turned to his daughter, with a smile. "What do you think of that, Hope Georgia? Isn't your dad right?"

Smiling her approval, the young girl squeezed her father's hand in her enthusiasm. "I think it's a splendid idea, dad; just great! Won't you come, Mr. Haines? We—eh—I—I know my father would like to have you."

As he stood before his two new found friends for such Haines now considered the Mississippian and his daughter—he could not suppress feelings of surprise tinged with uncertainty. He had, like the other newspaper men, received offers of employment from politicians who desired to increase their influence with the press. About times the salary offered had been large.

"Won't you come, Mr. Haines?"

the words so light that the reporter could "smell" the money and yet retain his newspaper position, a scanty disguised species of bribery, which had wrecked the careers of several promising young reporters well known to Haines, young men who had been thus led into "selling their columns" by unscrupulous machine dictators.

Haines knew that the Mississippian had no ulterior purpose to serve in his offer, yet he must have time to think over the proposal.

"I thank you, senator," he finally said. "I appreciate the opportunity, coming from you, but I've never thought of giving up the newspaper profession. It's a fascinating career, one that I am too fond of to leave."

Langdon started to reply, when a delightfully modulated southern voice interrupted.

"Father, I've been out with Mrs. Spangler to look for some other rooms. I don't like this hotel, and I found some that I do like."

Haines turned to see a handsomely groomed young woman who had the air of a politician's daughter in her bearing and her countenance—a brunette, with delicate features, though determination shone in her eyes and appeared in her self control and poise of head. She was the imperious type of beauty and suggested to Haines the day and night of Paul Helou.

He instinctively convicted her to be intensely ambitious, and of this Haines was soon to have unexpected evidence. Gazing at her with a sense of a growing admiration, Haines gave an involuntary start as Senator Langdon spoke:

"My daughter, Miss Carolina Langdon, Mr. Haines," said the senator.

"Are you the newspaper man who is interviewing father? I hope you'd be a nice one. We want him to be a successful and popular senator. We'd like to help him if we could."

The correspondent bowed. "I should say you certainly would help him to be a popular senator," he declared emphatically, failing to notice that Hope Georgia was somewhat annoyed at the enthusiasm displayed over her elder sister. In fact, Hope Georgia was suffering a partial fit not only of the head but of the heart.

"I'm leaving it to Mr. Haines to put down the things I ought to say," broke in the senator. "He knows."

"Yes, he knows everything about Washington, Carolina," exclaimed Hope Georgia spiritfully.

"I wish you'd interview me, Mr. Haines. Ask me how I manage to treat him as a friend—intimate one, too," he thought. "What if they should learn of Norton's questionable operations at the capitol, of his connection with two unsavory deals, one of which resulted in an amendment of the pure food law so that manufacturers of a valueless 'consumption cure' could continue to mislead the victims of the 'white plague' Norton, who had uttered an epigram now celebrated in the parlors of Washington. The path of glory led to the graft."

"Miss Langdon is very beautiful and attractive, sir," said Haines, resuming with the senator.

"Yes," drawled the Mississippian. "Girls in the south generally are."

"Well, I must be going. I'll think about your secretaryship. Senator Langdon, perhaps I can find some one."

"I wish you'd think about it for yourself," observed the senator, while Hope Georgia again nodded approval. "It would be a hard job. There are so many mares of political detail about which I am sadly inexperienced that really most of the work would fall on the secretary."

But Haines paused. Again he thought over Langdon's offer. His genuineness appealed to him. Suddenly there dawned on him an idea of just what it might mean to be associated with this honest old citizen who had asked for his help—who needed it, as Haines knew only too well. He would be the senator's guide and confidant—his adviser in big matters. Why, he would practically be United States senator himself. He knew the "insider" as few others in Washington. Here was a chance to match his wit against that of Penob, the boss of the senate; a chance to spoil some of the dishonest schemes of those who were adroitly "playing the game." He could better, too, the intriguing numbers of the "third house," as the lobbyists are called. He could direct a lightning bolt into the camp of Andy Corrigan, who claimed the honor of being "speaker of the third house." These thoughts crowded into his mind. Then, too, he would become practically a member of the Langdon family and have association with the two charming daughters—with Carolina Langdon.

"It would be a great chance," he murmured half aloud; "next thing to being a senator."

The old Mississippian heard the young man's words.

"I reckon it would," he drawled in agreement.

"You feel sure you want me?" urged the other.

Langdon chuckled.

"I asked you," he said.

Haines came abruptly to decision.

"I've thought it over, senator, and it

"It will be a great chance in every way. I'll accept."

seems to me it will be a great chance in every way. I'll accept. We'll fix it up tomorrow, and I'll try to make you a good secretary."

Langdon held forth his hand.

And Hain't try to make you a good senator, my boy. Fix up nothing to-morrow. Your duties begin tonight. You are to come to dinner with me and my daughters."

To be Continued.

ELKWOOD, ALA., Dec. 14, 1908.

Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y.
Dear Sirs:—I have been suffering most benefit from the use of your remedy Swamp-Root, that I believe it to be most important for the public to know its worth. For the past ten years I have been the most miserable of men. Did not know what the trouble was, but had to urinate very frequently by day and night; was all pulled up generally; could not sleep more than a few minutes at a time, was greatly distressed after eating a meal and was most worn out. I advertised and heard of without helping me to any great extent, until finally in October last at Ripon, Wis., I purchased a one dollar bottle of Swamp-Root and commenced taking it according to directions and followed that with another bottle and experienced such great relief and benefit from same that I purchased five dollars worth at Elkwood, Ala., and continued its use and am now taking it, but in smaller doses and twice a day in place of four times a day and believe by the time present supply is used up I will be entirely well. I am feeling better now than for ten years past. Can eat and sleep first-class, in fact I am so good that I cannot resist telling you about it. You are at liberty to publish this testimonial should you wish.
Very respectfully,
THOS. STALLARD, U. S. A., Retired
Box 7, R. No. 2, Elkwood, A. A.

Beneficial in Severe Cases.

Edgefield, Tenn.
Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y.
Gentlemen:—I hardly know how to express my appreciation for the good your Swamp-Root has done me. I had been greatly troubled with my kidneys, and with pain in my back also with what the doctor termed inflammation of the neck of the bladder. Sometimes my back would get in such a shape that I was almost helpless. I had tried several doctors and medicines to no good effect, and finally I noticed in some paper where Dr. Kilmer proposed to send a sample bottle of his kidney medicine, Swamp-Root, free by mail. I sent at once and received promptly a sample bottle. After taking it I found it did me good. I then purchased two bottles from our merchant, Mr. W. J.
Ellis. After taking the medicine I felt like a new man, and each day I rode five miles to teach school. You are at liberty to use this letter, or refer anyone to me, as I will always be glad to tell them what a wonderful remedy
this Swamp-Root is. Mr. James Ives, of Sanderville, Tenn., is taking it with good results. Very truly yours,
D. A. MONTGOMERY,
Member Tennessee Legislature,

A Clergyman.

NEW ROADS, LA., Jan. 22, 1909.
Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y.
Dear Sirs:—I write to the public that your Swamp-Root cured me of kidney trouble. I was almost past going;
having spasmic spells with my kidneys that were breaking down my constitution.
The best medical aid was employed, and they pronounced me incurable. I was in the kidneys but were unable to do me any permanent good.
I took four bottles of Swamp-Root and became a well man. This was six years ago and I have had no trace of the trouble. Very truly yours,
REV. J. R. TAYLOR,
Pastor Baptist Church, New Roads, La.

Mail Carrier's Experience.

BLOUNTVILLE, TENN.
I have been a rural letter carrier for over five years. Some two years ago I was taken with severe pains in my back.
I used medicine from my family physician for several months without any benefit. A friend, Mr. J. D. Nelson, advised me to try your Swamp-Root, but I had no faith in it. I continued to grow worse and I wrote to the public that remedy and bought of Long Bros., a fifty-cent bottle which gave me great relief. I then bought two one dollar bottles, which I can truthfully have completely cured me.
I had not been compelled to quit the rural free delivery service.
I advise all mail carriers who get pains in their back to try Swamp-Root. It will cure them.
I was so bad that very often my wife would have to help me to urinate.
M. B. HENDRICKSON,
Rural Letter Carrier, Route No. 2.

A Contractor.

DONALDSONVILLE, GA., Jan. 20, 1909.
Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y.
Gentlemen:—About four years ago I suffered from kidney trouble and rheumatism in my hips. The pain across my back became so severe that I could hardly straighten up and could not walk without dragging my feet. I would urinate frequently and would have to rise
two or three times during the night, causing me to suffer from loss of sleep.
And with the pain I was all run down and began to lose flesh. I saw Swamp-Root advertised and bought one bottle of large bottles. I was entirely free from all pain and could sleep all night. I continued to take it until I had taken four large bottles. I was entirely free from any pain in the back and began to gain in weight. I always recommend Swamp-Root to my friends as I think the cure in my case remarkable.

Every mail brings unsolicited testimonials from people from all over the United States and foreign land, expressing heartfelt gratitude for Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root has done for them.
Do not let anyone sell you some other medicine to take the place of Swamp-
Root—if you do you will be disappointed—in insisting on getting what you ask for—there is no other medicine as good as Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root

IF YOU NEED A MEDICINE YOU SHOULD HAVE THE BEST

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything, but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble or obliged to go often during the day and get up many times during the night, have smarting or irritation in passing or heart disturbance due to kidney trouble, Swamp-Root will be found just the remedy you need.

Don't Be Misled—For example when you ask for Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, don't allow any druggist, drug clerk or store keeper to persuade you into buying something else in its place.
Every time he succeeds in selling you a worthless substitute, he makes more profit, but you are humbugged at the expense of your health.

NOTE—Every reader of The Breckenridge News who has not tried Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, may address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y., and receive a sample bottle free by mail.

ART AND WEATHER.

A Storm That Suided the Painter, but Not the Committee.
In a gallery that waxes a large canvas in an imposing frame. The painting shows a waterfall in one of the states famous for startling natural scenery. The picture was occupied its present place for several years.
"Does it belong here?" asked a visitor of the man in charge.
"No more than the others you see."
"Seems to me it should be in the capitol of the state where this scenery is," said the visitor.
"It was painted for the state," replied the man in charge, "but when it was submitted to the art committee it refused to accept it."
"What was the objection?"
"You see the sky is overcast. The artist put in a gathering storm like an impending calamity. The art committee said it was a reflection on the reputation of the state; that a storm as is represented was unknown in that latitude."

"Couldn't the artist put in another sky, one that accord with the state's reputation for sunshine?"
"I suppose he could, but he refused.
He said that the rumpled kicked up by the art committee warranted the storm effect on the canvas, and he refused to budge. He sent it here, and here it remains."—Boston Herald.

Just For a Change.
"What I want," said the theatrical manager, "is a genuine novelty."
"Something 'ulstic'?" asked the playwright.
"Yes, but I don't want any real pugilists or real naval disasters or real live stock or real battles in it."
The playwright looked wearily thoughtful and, after a pause, inquired:
"How would it do to spring something on the public with real actors in it?"—London Tit-Bits.

DEATH OF THE WORLD.

When Water Disappears and Air Gets Too Thin to Breathe.
The age of the world is placed by some at 600,000,000 years, by others 100,000,000 years, and still others of later time place it at 10,000,000 years.
None place it lower than 10,000,000, knowing what processes have been gone through.

Other planets go through the same process. The sun that other planets differ so much from the earth is that they are in so much earlier or later stages of existence. The earth must become old.

Newton surmised, although he could give no reason for it, that the earth would lose all its water and become perfectly dry. Since then it has been found that Newton was correct.

As the earth keeps cooling it will become porous, and great cavities will be formed in the interior, which will take in the water. It is estimated that this process is now in progress, so far that the water diminishes at the rate of the thickness of a sheet of paper each year.

At this rate in 6,000,000 years the water will have sunk a mile, and in 15,000,000 the water will have disappeared from the face of the globe.
The nitrogen and oxygen in the atmosphere are also diminishing all the time. It is an inappreciable degree, but the time will come when the air will be so thin that no creature we know could breathe it and live. The time will come when the world cannot survive the loss of the water. It is the end of old age, and then will come death—

EIGHT PAGES.

CLOVERPORT, KY., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 3, 1909

The proceedings of the Farmers Institute at Elizabethtown last week were completely disappointing and thoroughly disgusting. The idea of an independent class of men like farmers permitting politics to take possession of their affairs! It's deplorable. What the outcome will be is not known, but the meeting which should have been a stimulant to agricultural pursuits, was paralyzed by politics. Of all institutions, we thought would ever turn a deaf ear to political dictations, the Farmers Institute headed our list. Be they Democrats or Republicans or both, they had better stay at home next time and read the farmers almanac.

Tomorrow when Mr. Taft takes the oath of office as president of the United States, many spectators will cast one long, interesting glance at Theodore Roosevelt as he leaves the Executive Chair. President Roosevelt is a wonderful man and has held the close attention of the whole world for seven years. It is too early for History to judge him and the influence of his administration cannot yet be weighed, but assuredly his political independence is being felt throughout America. He will live in the hearts of all true Americans.

The independent voters have things going their way in this county. The party lash and the party boss have lost their power. They are afraid to make a move. No man dares to stick his head up for office who is not a square man, a sober man, a trustful, law-abiding, law respecting man. No matter under whose banner he sails he's got to be the right kind to win.

In last week's editorial mention of the Colonial Tea given by the Ladies Aid of the Baptist church, at Irvington, we said Methodist. That was a dreadful mistake and we are frankly sorry. If the Baptist will pardon us this time we promise to remember them when the Methodists give an entertainment as delightful as the Colonial Tea.

About the best thing Gov. Wilson has done during his administration is the issuing of a pardon to the Louisville Herald, which was convicted of libeling a judge and commonwealths attorney who failed to do their duty in some night rider cases.

There are two Democrats in Mr. Taft's cabinet. They are not regular, of course, and not of the Bryan stripe, but are Democrats just the same.

People are getting tired of the political trickster. What they want is fair play and a square deal in everything, even in Farmers Institutes.

Cloverport has the distinction of having a son among the 14,000 circum-navigators just graduated by Uncle Sam.

Mr. Taft may have "played possum" down in Georgia but he will never play it in the White House.

Congress may not like President Roosevelt but the people do.

VERY FINE.

This Simple Home-Made Treatment Will Overcome Rheumatism.

Few people here know that you can cure that dread American disease, Rheumatism, with just common, everyday drugs found in any drug store. The prescription is so simple that any one can prepare it at home at small cost. It is made up as follows: Get from any good prescription pharmacist, Fluid Extract Dandelion, one half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. These are all very simple ingredients, making an absolutely harmless home remedy at little cost.

Rheumatism, as every one knows, is a symptom of deranged kidneys. It is a condition produced by the failure of the kidneys to properly filter or strain from the blood the uric acid and other matter, which, if not eradicated, either in the urine or through the skin pores, remains in the blood, decomposes and forms about the joints and muscles, causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

This prescription is said to be a splendid healing, cleansing and invigorating tonic to the kidneys, and gives almost immediate relief in all forms of bladder and urinary troubles and back-ache.

In view of this matter from a standpoint of economy to said city and county we recommend that steel girders or sills or whatever you may wish to call them, be put in and installed in said bridge, and by so doing this the county and city of Cloverport will hereafter be released from expending large sums of money on this bridge every two or three years.

No false pretense has marked the career of Ely's Cream Balm. Being entirely harmless, it is not responsible like the catarrh snuffs and powders, for minds shattered by cocaine. There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circular and testimonials. Address: F. J. A Quarter Million Dollar Distribution! OF FURNITURE, CARPETS, RUGS HOME FURNISHINGS

Manufacturers Lose Their Nerve

THE PUBLIC BENEFITS

THE public of Louisville and the entire states of KENTUCKY, OHIO, INDIANA and adjacent SOUTHERN TERRITORY will agree to benefit by another colossal purchase which was recently made by the James Greene Furniture Company amounting to a QUARTER OF A MILLION DOLLARS' WORTH OF MANUFACTURERS' SURPLUS STOCKS, consisting of furniture, carpets, rugs, curtains, stoves and household goods of every description. This is without question the greatest purchase that was ever made by any furniture establishment in the UNITED STATES. The great sale given a year ago by the JAMES GREENE FURNITURE COMPANY was a most WONDERFUL SALE, and a bargain giving event that was the talk of the country for months thereafter. The sale this year involves a much greater purchase value than was bought at practically 20% LESS THAN THE BIG MANUFACTURERS' PURCHASE OF A YEAR AGO. It matters not how many hundred miles you reside from Louisville this will certainly be an opportunity for you to save from $25.00 to $250.00 in buying an outfit for your home. *Never before in the history of furniture and carpet buying were such low prices quoted. Our reason for giving the public, at large, the benefit of our big purchase is namely, to attract 10,000 new patrons to our establishment. During this big sale which will be the largest sale of FURNITURE, CARPETS, RUGS, ETC., that was ever GIVEN in the UNITED STATES, during the entire ten-day sale all profits will be entirely swept away. It is our yearly offering to the people, and we propose making it such a real sacrifice and bargain feast as will amaze the public. Even if you live at a distance of 600 to 800 miles your Mail Orders will receive the same prompt attention as a visit from you in person. Inauguration of the Twenty-seventh President

It Will Be a More Imposing and Costly Function Than Any of Its Predecessors

FROM present indications it is apparent that there will be no falling off in the inaugural celebration this year. Although he never led a charge of rough riders and has no actual right to sing "Cheer Up, Comrades," Mr. Taft will be honored by an attendance at the inaugural ceremonies of as great a military force as that which marched in parade behind President Roosevelt. In keeping with the essentially peaceful and civic character of the incoming president, the industrial and civilian features of the parade of next March 4 will be more extensive and imposing than ever before.

The program of the inaugural period is divided into five important features and some others of a lesser degree of interest—first, the imposing military division of the parade, which has been arranged on a big scale by Major General J. Franklin Bell, who is grand marshal; second, the civic organization division of the parade, with Major Thomas P. Morgan, chairman of the

The joint committee of the two houses of congress purposes to make the ceremonies attending the actual inauguration of President Taft and Vice President Sherman as solemn and dignified as befits so important an event. Joy and merriment and the spirit of festivity will mark the inaugural parade, and the scenes along the streets will be as brilliant as ever, but in the capital and on the inaugural stand erected on its east front solemnity and dignity will dominate. The details are already perfected, and every official and every employee understands the part he is to play.

The senate will complete the work of the last session of the Sixtieth congress about 10:30 a. m. on March 4 and will then take a recess so that the ceremony may be set for the important act in the great drama of the republic so soon to take place. Shortly before noon the vice president will call the senate to order. The secretary of the senate will announce the arrival of the speaker and the house of representa-and remain standing until the person announced is seated.

Mr. Fairbanks' Valedictory.

When all the dignitaries have arrived the vice president will deliver his valedictory and will then call to the rostrum James S. Sherman, to whom he will administer the oath of the vice president of the United States, after which he will declare the senate adjourned without day. Having been sworn, Mr. Sherman will ascend the rostrum and, taking the gavel, will call the senate to order for the new session and will ask that new members of the senate come forward and take the oath of office. Presumably there will be sixteen new faces in the senate. Each new senator, accompanied by his colleague, will step forward and take the oath. This done, the entire assemblage will proceed to the inaugural stand.

The sergeants-at-arms of the senate and the house will lead the senate procession. This is an innovation, as heretofore it has been led by the marshals of the supreme court and of the District of Columbia. The members of the senate chamber will fall into line in the same order in which they entered the senate, and the entire company will march to the inaugural stand.

The troops gathered in front of the stand will present arms as the president and the president elect and the vice president and the vice president elect to the capitol. When they have arrived at the front of the stand Chief Justice Fuller will step forward and administer to Mr. Taft the oath of office, following which the new president will deliver his inaugural address, which is understood to be unusually brief. From the stand the president will descend a flight of steps to his carriage and drive immediately to the White House, where he may snatch a brief luncheon before taking his place in the stand.

There will be a slight change this year in the order of the progress of the president, the president elect and the vice president and the vice president elect to the capitol. In view of the close relations of Senator Lodge to the president he will ride in the carriage with the president and the president elect, as will also Senator Knox, who, as chairman of the committee on arrangements is the personal escort of the executive. The vice president will have as escort Senator Bacon and Representatives Burke and Gaines, while the vice president elect will be accompanied by Senator Frye, the president pro tempore of the senate, and Representative Young. Heretofore only one senator has accompanied the two chief figures in the ceremonies.

Ball a National Function.

Always a pleasing and picturesque feature, it is proposed to make the inaugural ball of 1909 something more—a great national function of supreme interest and significance. It will take the form of a reception by President Taft and Vice President Sherman to the country at large. Each state in the Union will be officially represented on the floor by one of its distinguished sons, whose mission it will be to cooperate officially in the presentation of the visitors from here, there and everywhere to the great men of the nation who will be in attendance.

Charles Blair, whose father, Montgomery Blair, was postmaster general in the cabinet of President Lincoln, is chairman of the committee in charge of the inaugural ball and has planned the event as to bring the entire Union through the forty-six states into direct and active participation in the function.

"Washington is a national city, a city belonging to the country," Chairman Blair said in discussing the ball arrangements. "It is our desire that all who come to the inauguration—and there promises to be the biggest attendance in the history of these affairs—should feel that in coming to the national capital they are coming to their own city."

"The ball will be essentially and distinctly national. A representative from each state has been designated as a member of the inaugural ball committee. These gentlemen will bring many of the people who come from their respective states and will see that they are properly introduced to the statesmen and their wives and other distinguished visitors. Thus it is hoped to bring the forty-six states into close touch with the national capital on this memorable occasion."

Presidential Inaugurations From Washington to Lincoln

All the Way From "Jeffersonian Simplicity" to the Pomp and State of Modern Times.

DURING the early years of the government, before the capital was moved to Washington, the induction of a president, although a ceremony of great dignity and solemnity, was a very small and select affair.

In New York for nearly a fortnight preceding the great day of April 30, 1789, every tavern and boarding house had been thronged with visitors, and on the day before the inauguration every private house was filled with guests from all parts of the Union.

In the center of the procession, preceded by the senate and followed by representatives, walked George Washington. On reaching Federal hall the troops formed a line on each side of the way, through which the president, with his attendants, was conducted to tol by the militia, and the ceremony took place in the senate chamber, which is now the supreme court room.

As the day for the second inauguration of James Monroe fell on Sunday, the ceremony took place the following day, Monday, March 5.

John Quincy Adams was inaugurated on March 4, 1825, and the day was one of great demonstration and display. President Monroe called at the residence of the president elect, who then resided on F street, opposite the Elkhorn House, and here they were joined by the military escort, and the procession, headed by the cavalry, moved at once to the capitol.

The inauguration of "Old Hickory" took place on March 4, 1829, and was a memorable one. The friends of President John Quincy Adams had five American citizens inaugurated president, for all the others had been born as British subjects.

A Notable Celebration.

The inauguration of "Old Tippecanoe" was one of the greatest events that ever occurred in the national capital. After the famous campaign which preceded his election great crowds gathered in Washington to witness the inauguration.

Exactly one month after this President Harrison died, and on April 6 John Tyler took the oath of office before William Cranch, chief judge of the circuit court of the District of Columbia.

It was a cold, rainy day when President Polk was inaugurated, but there was a long procession of the military as well as civic organizations.

Zachary Taylor had fine weather, unlimited noise and great ceremonies attending his inauguration. As the 4th fell on Sunday, he was inaugurated on Monday.

As President Taylor died on July 9, President Millard Fillmore took the oath of office on July 10 in the house of representatives.

The inauguration of Franklin Pierce was unique in the fact that the vice president elect, William R. King, was not in Washington to be sworn into office, but took the oath of office at a plantation on the hills above Matanzas at the same time President Elect Pierce was being sworn in in Washington. There was no inaugural ball.

The 4th of March, 1857, was a splendid day, and James Buchanan was inaugurated with much pomp and ceremony.

After reaching the White House President Buchanan held a public reception and at night attended the inaugural ball, which was held in a building in Judiciary square erected for that purpose.

The Lincoln Festivities.

Abraham Lincoln had a bright, clear day for his first inauguration, but it rained and the streets were wet and muddy when he took his second oath of office. The martyr president went to the capitol from Springfield by way of Indianapolis, Columbus, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, and, although he was given receptions all along the way, when he reached Harrisburg, on account of threatened violence, it was thought best to change the plans, and he proceeded to Philadelphia in one of the passenger cars, arriving there at midnight, he entered the New York steamer and passed through Baltimore undisturbed and arrived in Washington at 6:30 on the morning of Feb. 23. He remained at Willard's hotel until the inauguration day, when President Buchanan called for him and in an open carriage the party proceeded to the capitol. In order to avoid threatened violence the president and president elect in their carriages were preceded by a company of infantry, double files of the District cavalry on either side and by infantry and other military organizations following. In the long procession there was a large car or float representing the constitution and the Union, each state being represented by a little girl dressed in white. A battalion of District troops guarded the steps of the capitol. The ceremony of swearing in the vice president in the senate chamber, the entire party marched to the east portico of the capitol, where the great scene of swearing in Abraham Lincoln took place.

The civil war was in progress when Mr. Lincoln was inaugurated for the second time. There were evidences of the war everywhere, and gloom and sadness covered the whole land. The president went to the capitol early to sign 11th and therefore the parade marched down without him. The procession, however, was noteworthy.

committee, in charge as marshal, third, the great display of fireworks on the White lot, just in front of the White House, in combination with the illumination of the streets of Washington through the downtown section, the dome of the United States capitol and the Washington monument, and a drill and display of pyrotechnics by the Republican Flanigan club of Minneapolis; fourth, the inaugural ball in the pension building, the biggest brick structure in the world; fifth, the foreign parade of the American veteran soldiers and sailors of the G. A. R., the United Spanish War Veterans and the Army and Navy union, which will form the escort of honor for President Elect Taft and Vice President Elect Sherman from the White House to the capitol, where they will take the oath of office, preceding the big parade and other features.

Sailors and Marines.

The details of the big military parade have been worked out by Brigadier General John A. Johnson, chief of General Bell's staff, assisted by Major Samuel D. Sturgis, adjutant general, both regular army officers on duty at the war department. Here is the inauguration day program in a nutshell as prepared by them:

The morning escort of the president from the White House to the capitol at 10 a. m. by the veteran grand division; the exercises at the capitol on a stand accommodating 7,000 persons, concluding with the administration of the oath of office to the president and his address; the assembly of the military and grand division in the streets south and southeast of the capitol; the division in the streets west and northwest of the capitol; the afternoon escort of the president by the military and civic grand divisions from the capitol to the White House at the conclusion of his inaugural address at about 1:30 p. m.; review of the military and civic grand divisions by the president from his stand in the court of honor in front of the White House from about 3 to 6 in the afternoon and the dismissal of the parade, the display of fireworks from 7:30 to 9 p. m.

In the military division there will be about 3,000 sailors and marines from the battleship fleet, fresh from his cruise around the world, the famous Philippine constabulary band, the midshipmen and cadets from the academies at Annapolis and West Point.

tives, and they will file into the senate chamber at take the places assigned to them. Next in order will come the supreme court of the United States, headed by Chief Justice Fuller, and then the ambassadors and ministers plenipotentiary of the foreign nations. Following the heads of the diplomatic corps will come the heads of the executive departments, who will take their places immediately back of the seats assigned to the chief figures in the drama.

Following the cabinet, the vice president elect will be formally announced and will enter, accompanied by his escort—Senator Frye, president pro tempore of the senate, and Representative Young. "The president elect" will be the next announcement, and William H. Taft, accompanied by Senators Knox and Lodge, will enter, and finally the president of the United States will enter alone. At each announcement the entire assemblage will rise the chamber of the senate, where the representatives had assembled a few minutes before, and at the door the vice president received him and attended him to the chair.

The vice president then said, "Sir, the senate and the house of representatives are ready to attend you to the capitol in an open carriage, which will be administered by the state of New York." The president answered, "I am ready to proceed."

agreed not to participate in the inaugural ceremonies, and the only uniformed military company in the District of Columbia declined to offer its escort to the president elect. A company of Revolutionary officers and soldiers, however, organized and tendered their services to General Jackson as an escort, and he rode to the capitol in an open carriage.

The second inauguration of Andrew Jackson was very simple. There was no military escort, no outward display and no procession.

Although the generally accepted accounts of Jefferson's inauguration make it appear that he rode to the capitol on horseback without attendance and that the ceremony was of the simplest kind, a newspaper of the day states that "on this day President Elect Jefferson was escorted from his lodgings to the capitol by a body of militia and a procession of citizens."

Jefferson's second inauguration on March 5, 1805, was simpler, if possible than his first.

A Ceremonious Occasion.

The inauguration of James Madison was the first ceremony which was made a great occasion. The day was ushered in by a federal salute, and at an early hour the volunteer corps of militia began to assemble. So great was the crowd that the oath of office was administered in the old hall of representatives, now statutory hall, at the capitol. For the first time in the history of inaugurations the various branches of the government were ushered into the hall with ceremonious pomp and parade.

James Madison was inaugurated the second time on March 4, 1813. He had a military escort, and the ceremonies in the house of representatives were similar to those of his first inauguration. In the evening there was an inauguration ball at Davis' hotel, which is now the Metropolitan.

The 4th of March, 1817, was a beautiful day, and there was a large crowd to witness the inauguration ceremonies. The president elect and vice president elect left the private residence of President Monroe, attended by a large cavalcade of citizens on horseback. They were met at the capitol

RESCUING A CAPTIVE AND SAVING A HERD BY BUFFALO BILL FROM TRUE TALES OF THE PLAINS

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY WILLIAM F. COODY

JUNE 18, 1880, under General Eugene A. Carr, saw us hunting for a band of Indian "dog soldiers" who were, like the Irishman's, here, there and at times everywhere.

Nebraska, Colorado and Kansas were all excited over the depredations of these renegades. They had murdered night and day, had captured several hundred Indian and horse and wagon trains, as we could tell by the trail of some shot animals. That intensified our desire to punish or capture them was the fact that they had some white captives—Mrs. Alderlie, whose husband and children they had killed, and Mrs. Weigel, whose husband and family had been murdered, and these two women were known to be still alive and with them.

As last we got on our trail and had almost daily skirmishes, and General Carr decided to use some stratagem to see if we could not get them in a tight place. He consulted with me and after a day of continual skirmishing and a night attack he ordered a retrograde movement, which created a good deal of discussion between the officers and men at the time. Apparently abandoning the pursuit, he retired as if he was going back to the fort, and in two or three days, as he surmised, the Indians were withdrawn. But we were determined that they should be chased to the point where they would be completely cut off from their escape. This movement was intended to retrace his steps and catch them sleeping. For better sure that they were not getting away, we packed all the grub possible on the mules, burned the wagons and impediments and immediately started to make forced marches in their direction.

As I had surmised, they were heading for Summit Springs, a few miles south of the Platte river and among the sand hills, which formed a beautiful little oasis, as it were, for a camp ground. Striking their trail by judging from their daily campfires, we made in one day the same distance that they made in three, but when near the Springs, as we saw the trail getting fresher, we covered four of their day's journeying, with all the impediments and village outfit. In one day and landed at the opportune moment ready for business, while the enemy had been thrown off their guard and gave us an opening that resulted so gloriously that this battle is recalled as having been one of the most effective in the early breaking of the power of the red man on the plains.

In "Carr's Campaigns" General Carr writes: "On Sunday, July 11, 1880, I was thinking of going to the river to water my horses when 'Buffalo Bill' came back and said: 'I have seen the village. It is over a ridge, away from the river camp.' We had not seen the trail for some time. They had followed an old custom of trailing along the ridge where we had dismounted to cross it and going over the high ground, so that any one following them would be visible from camp. Cody's idea was to get around, beyond and between them and the river. He changed the horses quickly and went on, and I took to the gallop for several miles through the deep sand and got to the top of a sand hill or mound. From the top I saw off to the left on the bluff back of me, and I went. The Pawnees pointed over the ridge and said, 'Hoss, hoss.' I saw what looked like a band of renegades, but said, 'No, hoss.' They said, 'No, hoss, hoss.' They took my glasses and looked and said, 'Yes, hoss.'"

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have trifled with indigestion, have been suffering for 10-15 years, or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating fluid, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dizziness or chronic tired feeling, you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want. Let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary popular "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you in digestive ailments. Pepsin is only

I looked, and, sure enough, they were "dog soldiers" and the camp no longer was below. I permitted the Pawnees, as was their custom, to strip and take off their saddles and all their uniforms, but to keep on their drawers, so as to be recognized as friendly. I had sent word to Colonel Royal, and he sent up Major Walker's company and came on with the rest. I placed the Pawnees on the left and two companies of the Fifth Cavalry in the center and one of Captain Price's on the right. I told Major Eugene Crittenden to take command of the center and I would take the reserve and send up reinforcements as required.

"When we all got started I told the boys behind me to sound 'the charge' and we were among the enemy before they had any idea that we were within a thousand miles. Then I heard the rattling of rifles on the right and left, plainly distinguishing the base sound of 'Buffalo Bill's' trusty rifle, old 'Lauretta Borgia'."

"Buffalo Bill got pretty well around the village when he went in on Captain Price's right. As he advanced he saw a chief on a horse charging about and haranguing his men. He and his party laid for him, and as he came nearer 'Buffalo Bill' shot him off his horse and got the animal. This was the celebrated race horse 'Butch' which he (Cody) rode for a long time and with it won many exciting races. When he came into camp Mrs. Tal' Bull said that it was her husband's horse, leaving no doubt about the fact that 'Buffalo Bill' had killed the chief."

"On this occasion the Indians began their old tricks in trying to hide their trail by devices well known to me, but I paid no attention to this, knowing what must be their next stopping place, and I was as familiar with that part of the country as they were. Straight on we kept to the Springs, except that occasionally we went out of the direct line to keep in low places between the sand hills so as not to be seen. At 9 o'clock that night we halted four miles from the Springs. Advancing Thomas to allow the men to unsaddle and unburden, letting each soldier and man hold two horses by their halters, and so let them feed on the grass, changing the men every two hours so they could get some sleep, I disguised myself as an Indian and started off to locate the hostiles and be back in time so as to attack them at daylight. No fires were to be lighted, and all were to be silent until my return. Before I left, the half of the first men of the little band were slumbering. One hour later I had seen the camp, just as I expected, in fancied security, believing that we could not be within a day's march of them."

"I detailed a board of officers to count the dead Indians, and notwithstanding that it is their custom to carry away the wounded and to hide or bury the dead we found sixty-eight dead bodies on the field."

As chief of scouts under General Phil Sheridan, I and the men were resting at Fort McPherson after a hazardous expedition and a long and hard day's march, when a scout came and told me that he had seen a band of Indians who had dashed from the cottonwood trees, shouting and had stamped a herd of about 400 animals. The Indians had killed two of the herders and wounded another. Some of the herd ran for the corral, where they were accustomed to go for the night, but the Indians got away with about 200 and started for the bluffs south of the fort. All was excitement, but, as was my custom, I had my war horse, 'Butch,' and rode to the top of a sand mound in time to make a reconnaissance and note the direction in which the Indians had disappeared with the government stock.

General William H. Emory had his bugler sound the "boots and saddles," and by the time I returned for instructions five troops of cavalry were busy saddling up, getting their arms, ammunition and some supplies. One company—L, Fifth United States cavalry—were the first troops saddled and ready for the chase. Their officer, a young lieutenant by the name of Earl D. Thomas, now Brigadier General Thomas and in command of the department of Colorado, was just out from West Point, full of ambition and delighted to be in command in the absence of his superiors. General Edmund and myself agreed on the necessity of quick action, not to the delight of young Thomas, who was ordered with his troop to follow me, while the other troops as soon as ready would follow.

"Four right! Troop! Gallop!" And we dashed off. We followed at a gallop until dark, but did not get a sight of the Indians, and the tracks showed that they were whirling it up on the run. A halt was called to give the puffing horses a rest, and Thomas consulted me. His orders were to follow and recapture the animals. I told Thomas I could follow the trail at night if necessary and awaited his answer. "I will follow you, Mr. Cody, as long as I can, and I will go where ever you propose." After a short rest, "Mount and forward!" was the order, and the chase was continued. During the night the Indians repeatedly doubled on their trail. We did not reach Medicine Creek, where we got water for men and horses, until 11 o'clock the next day.

The trail showed that the Indians were headed southwest, in the direction of Red Willow Springs. Knowing that there was no water between Medicine Creek and the Red Willow, I was sure that the Indians would make a stop there, as it was many miles from there to the next water. We decided it was best to keep continuously on the job and as the Indians must make some stop to rest and eat we could overtake them. When the horses were rested, and as we had nothing on hand to eat to delay us and had had nothing since dinner the day before, our best possibility for a meal was to overtake the Indians, surprise them, whip them and capture what dried meat they had.

After leaving the creek the Indians began their old tricks in trying to hide their trail by devices well known to me, but I paid no attention to this, knowing what must be their next stopping place, and I was as familiar with that part of the country as they were. Straight on we kept to the Springs, except that occasionally we went out of the direct line to keep in low places between the sand hills so as not to be seen. At 9 o'clock that night we halted four miles from the Springs. Advancing Thomas to allow the men to unsaddle and unburden, letting each soldier and man hold two horses by their halters, and so let them feed on the grass, changing the men every two hours so they could get some sleep, I disguised myself as an Indian and started off to locate the hostiles and be back in time so as to attack them at daylight. No fires were to be lighted, and all were to be silent until my return. Before I left, the half of the first men of the little band were slumbering. One hour later I had seen the camp, just as I expected, in fancied security, believing that we could not be within a day's march of them."

Crawling back till I could hoof it on the run, I found the boys as I had left them. Quietly they were called to saddle up, instructions were given, men were detailed to pay particular attention to recapturing and rounding up the herd and only were instructed as to the attack on the camp. I estimated the Indians to number about thirty, and there were forty-two of us. Ten were to creep up to the sleeping Indians on foot and be ready to work in open order. Twenty, besides the lieutenant and myself, were to charge on horseback. The rest were to bring up the remaining horses, attack the herders and round up the entire herd. We attacked at break of day, and the whole scheme worked well. The first lot were surprised when awakened to meet their foes. Nine of them were sent to sleep forever. Many had kept their war horses near them, and, hastily mounting, they escaped with several picked horses from our band. Among them was one of my favorite war horses, Powder Face, which one of them who probably knew him had appropriated for his own use.

As soon as the fight was over and I saw that we had captured some of their herd as well as our own, I saw that Powder Face was not with them, but I recognized him half a mile away, his rider heading for the hills. This made me hot, and knowing that the Indians would think others were following me, I dashed after them. Old Buckskin Joe soon began to gallop, and I got near enough for a shot. My first shot killed the horse that an Indian was riding alongside of Powder Face, and his rider was sent up behind in the usual manner they try to save a warrior, riding backward, shooting at me with his revolver. Powder Face was as swift as Joe. Being in the rough sand hills and having a double

A Gentleman from Mississippi.

Is a story of an epoch making battle of right against wrong of honesty against corruption, of simplicity and sincerity against deceit, bribery and intrigue. It is the story of today in this country. It vitally concerns every man, woman and child in the United States, so far reaching is its influence.

The warfare is now going on—the warfare of honest men against corrupt political machines.

The story tells the "inside" of the political maneuvers in Washington and of the workings of bosses there and elsewhere—how they shape men and women to their ends, how their cunning intrigues extend into the very social life of the nation's capital. You will find inspiration in the career of the honest old Southern planter elected to the United States Senate and the young newspaper reporter who becomes his private secretary and political pilot.

Your heart will be in sympathy with the love of the secretary and the Senator's youngest daughter.

You will read of the lobbyists and find that not all of them are men. You will see how avarice causes a daughter to conspire against her father. You will find the note of a gripping national tragedy in the words of Peabody, the "boss of the Senate." But cause for laughter as well will be found lacking in this truly many sided narrative.

Are you reading this story now running in this paper? If not you are missing the story of your life. It is interesting from start to finish. Read it in

After Effects of Grip.

Mr. K. Esvel, Company "B," 21st Michigan V. I., 39 Hermitage St., Grand Rapids, Mich., writes:

"I felt with advancing years that my vigor failed me and fear of poisoning my system with noxious medicines prevented my taking anything for it until noting the effect Peruna had on several of my comrades I made up my mind it would be good for me.

"I suffered for years from effects of the la grippe, which seemed to settle in my stomach and kidneys.

"Five bottles of Peruna made a new man of me. I wish that I had known of Peruna years ago, and then it would have saved me much suffering."

Nasal Catarrh and Grip.

Mrs. J. B. Allen, Petoskey, Mich., writes:

"Both my husband and myself were seriously ill with la grippe. "One day I saw an advertisement of Peruna in a paper and asked him to get me a bottle. He had no faith in it, but got the medicine. I took it and immediately began to improve.

is very slight chance of his recovery.

Friends of Mr. Mack Meador sympathize with him over the death of his wife, who was taken from him a few weeks ago. They had only been married a few years and were so happy and contented. It is sad to witness the breaking up of a happy home

"For a long time I could not persuade him to take it, but finally he began to take Peruna too, and he now is as enthusiastic in its praise as I am.

"Peruna also cured my husband of obstinate nasal catarrh, of twenty-five years' standing."

Bad Case of Grip.

Mrs. Gentry Gates, East Lake, Ala., writes:

"I tried several kinds of medicine, but could get no relief.

"I tried Peruna and it cured me. I can safely say that it is a fine medicine. I have used it in my family often and find it to be good."

Systemic Catarrh Follows Grip.

Mrs. Jennie W. Cecil, Big Cabin, Indian Territory, formerly housekeeper for Indiana Reform School for Boys, writes:

"Six years ago I had la grippe, which was followed by systemic catarrh. The only thing I used was Peruna and Manlin, and I have been in better health the last three years than for years before.

"I give Peruna all the credit for my good health."

Who can withstand the dreadful hand of grip that periodically clutches thousands in its remorseless grasp?

Can any one hide from its terror?

Can any one afford to ignore its consequences?

A remedy to allay its ferocity during its attack.

A remedy to mitigate damages to the system.

Can anything more be done?

Is not Peruna, the renowned catarrh medicine, such a remedy?

Many thousands of people think so.

Grip Entirely Relieved.

Rev. George A. E. Troutman, M.A., Washington, Mo., writes:

"My wife and I are strong believers in Peruna. I was cured of a bad case of catarrh when nothing else that I tried had any effect. My wife was cured from a severe case of la grippe, and we feel that the least we can do is to gratefully acknowledge the merit of Peruna.

"My wife joins me in sending best wishes for your success."

"I give this testimonial for the benefit of other sufferers."
